

Dollar Limitations for Retail Exempt Products Shipped By Common Carrier

Question:

Are there any dollar limitations or quantity limitations for retail exempt products that are shipped in interstate commerce by common carrier?

Answer:

No, however two points must be noted. First, only products derived from federally inspected products can be shipped in interstate commerce. Second, there is no dollar limitation on the amount of product that is sold to household consumers. However, there are limitations set out in 9 CFR 303.1 (d) (2) (ii) and (iii) which define normal retail quantity and a dollar limit for sales to other than household consumers.

Source:

askFSIS question dated 4/17/2008, found at <http://askfsis.custhelp.com>.